  - and trivial functions
  - and virtual destructors
  - examples
  - reasons for defaulting
  - syntax
  - things that can be defaulted
- dividing work
  - by task
  - comparing complexity of alternatives
  - data access patterns
  - dividing data recursively
  - early completion
  - generalist threads vs. specialist threads
  - guidelines
  - matrix multiplication
  - performance characteristics
  - pipeline
  - recursively
  - separating concerns
  - specialist threads
  - splitting data
  - std::async
  - std::thread::hardware_concurrency
  - threads vs. tasks
  - to reduce data accessed in each thread
- double-checked locking
  - defined
  - race condition
  - undefined behavior
- doubly-linked list
  - deleting from
  - invariant
- dual-core
- dummy nodes, in a lock-free queue
- DWCAS (double-word-compare-and-swap)