About the Technical Reviewer

Ryan Owens graduated from Gonzaga University in Spokane, Washington, with a degree in electrical and computer engineering. He is a design engineer for SparkFun Electronics, where he creates new products and writes tutorials and project walk-through guides for all levels of embedded electronics. He also taught a handful of classes on beginning electronics and Arduino programming for SparkFun, where typical students range from children to IT professionals.