Game science

Why is this so hard? Our brains are good at recognizing shapes, which we learn about from a young age. So when someone says “find a triangle,” you’ll quickly zoom in on whatever looks like a triangle. You do this so quickly that it’s easy to miss triangles that are less obvious—because they have other shapes inside them, for example.

HOW MANY TRIANGLES IN THE SQUARE?