Game science

A loopturner is a little bit like a tiny computer program. Each row of numbers works like a “code” for a particular pattern. The patterns look complicated, yet they can be boiled down to just a short row of numbers and one simple instruction. Computer code often works in a similar way.

