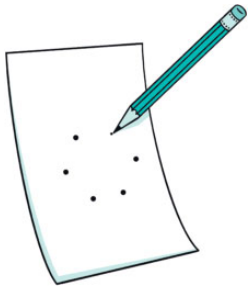
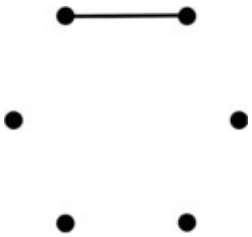
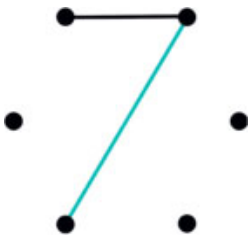
1 Draw six large pencil dots on the paper in a hexagon shape, like this.



It doesn’t have to be super neat—just make sure it looks like a hexagon.

2 Then each player takes turns using their pen to draw a straight line between any two dots. For example, here player 1—who has a black pen—has gone first.





3 You can’t draw over a line that’s already there, and your lines must always connect two dots. Keep taking turns adding more lines, but whatever you do, DON’T let your lines make a triangle. If you do, you lose!