Game science

Hex is not ancient like some mathematical games. It was invented in the 1940s, less than 100 years ago. Two different mathematicians, Piet Hein and John Nash, came up with the same idea separately. Hex is tricky because as well as trying to make your own chain, you're trying to block your opponent—and they're trying to block you, too!

GREAT mathematical minds think alike!