

Note a few interesting points from this codebase:

- The application itself has a clean package structure.
- There are as many tests as there is functional code.
- There is plenty of test data, which indicates that there are real tests for many scenarios.

Then they generated a CodeFlower on their older e-commerce application codebase. An excerpt is shown in figure 2.12.

Figure 2.12. An excerpt from a CodeFlower generated from an extremely complex application