Manning’s commitment to our readers is to provide a venue where a meaningful dialogue between individual readers and between readers and the author can take place. It is not a commitment to any specific amount of participation on the part of the author, whose contribution to the forum remains voluntary (and unpaid). We suggest you try asking the author some challenging questions lest their interest stray! The forum and the archives of previous discussions will be accessible from the publisher’s website for as long as the book is in print.

about the author

Francisco Lopez-Sancho Abraham is an experienced software engineer and part of the Akka team. He has been a consultant for many years, from Japan to the United States and a few countries in between. Twenty years ago, he started his career in Spain, then moved to the UK, and for the last six years he has lived out and about, doing what he loves: programming and traveling.

Authors of the previous edition

Raymond Roestenburg is an experienced software craftsman, polyglot programmer, and software architect. He has been a production user, contributor, and evangelist of Akka since 2010. He is an honorary member of the Akka core team.

Rob Bakker is an experienced architect/team lead in different environments and has also worked as a complete DevOps developer. Rob has developed applications in different languages like Scala, Java, and Go, running on different OS platforms. In recent