another origin, there are a number of ways that the cookie could be overwritten by the attacker with a known value, which would then let them forge requests. For example, if the attacker compromises a sub-domain of your site they may be able to overwrite the cookie.

