OS. You, the customer, need to specify the rules controlling access to your data and RDS database.

Figure 10.4 shows the following three layers that control access to an RDS database:

- Controlling access to the configuration of the RDS database
- Controlling network access to the RDS database
- Controlling data access with the database’s own user and access management features