

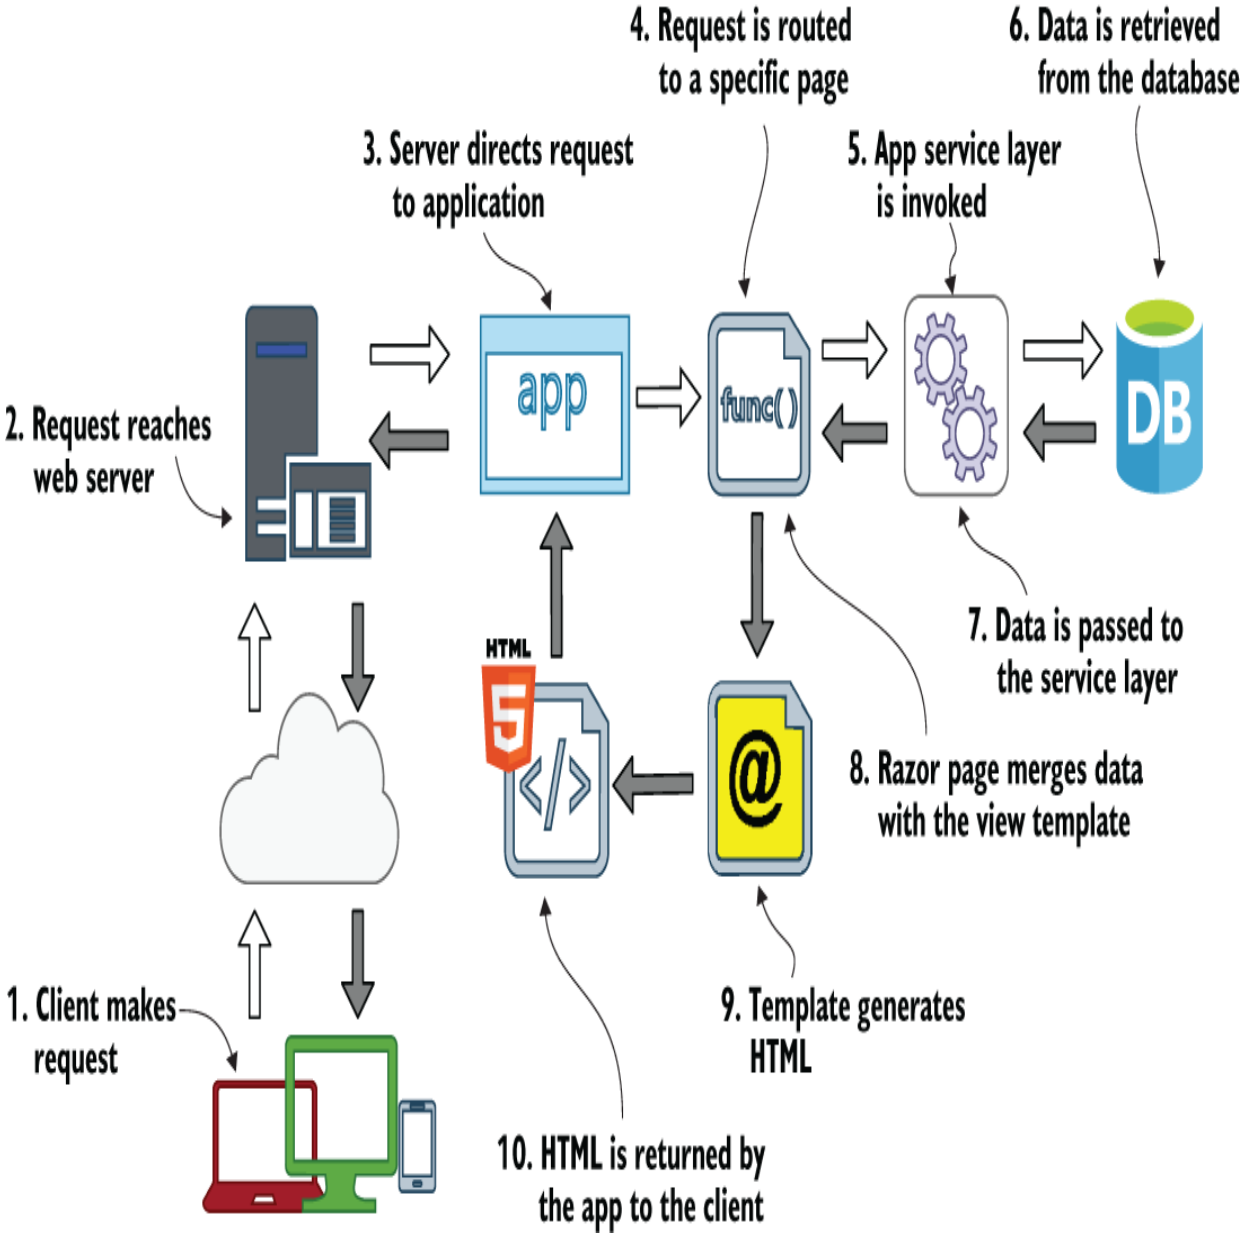

Figure 1.2 Workflow diagram showing how the process involving the use of templates works in Razor Pages. This workflow starts in the bottom left with a client requesting /book/razor-pages-in-action or similar. The white arrows show the direction of travel through the internet to the web server, which locates the correct application and then passes processing to the Razor Page (with `func()` in it). Control is then passed to the application service layer, which is responsible for