

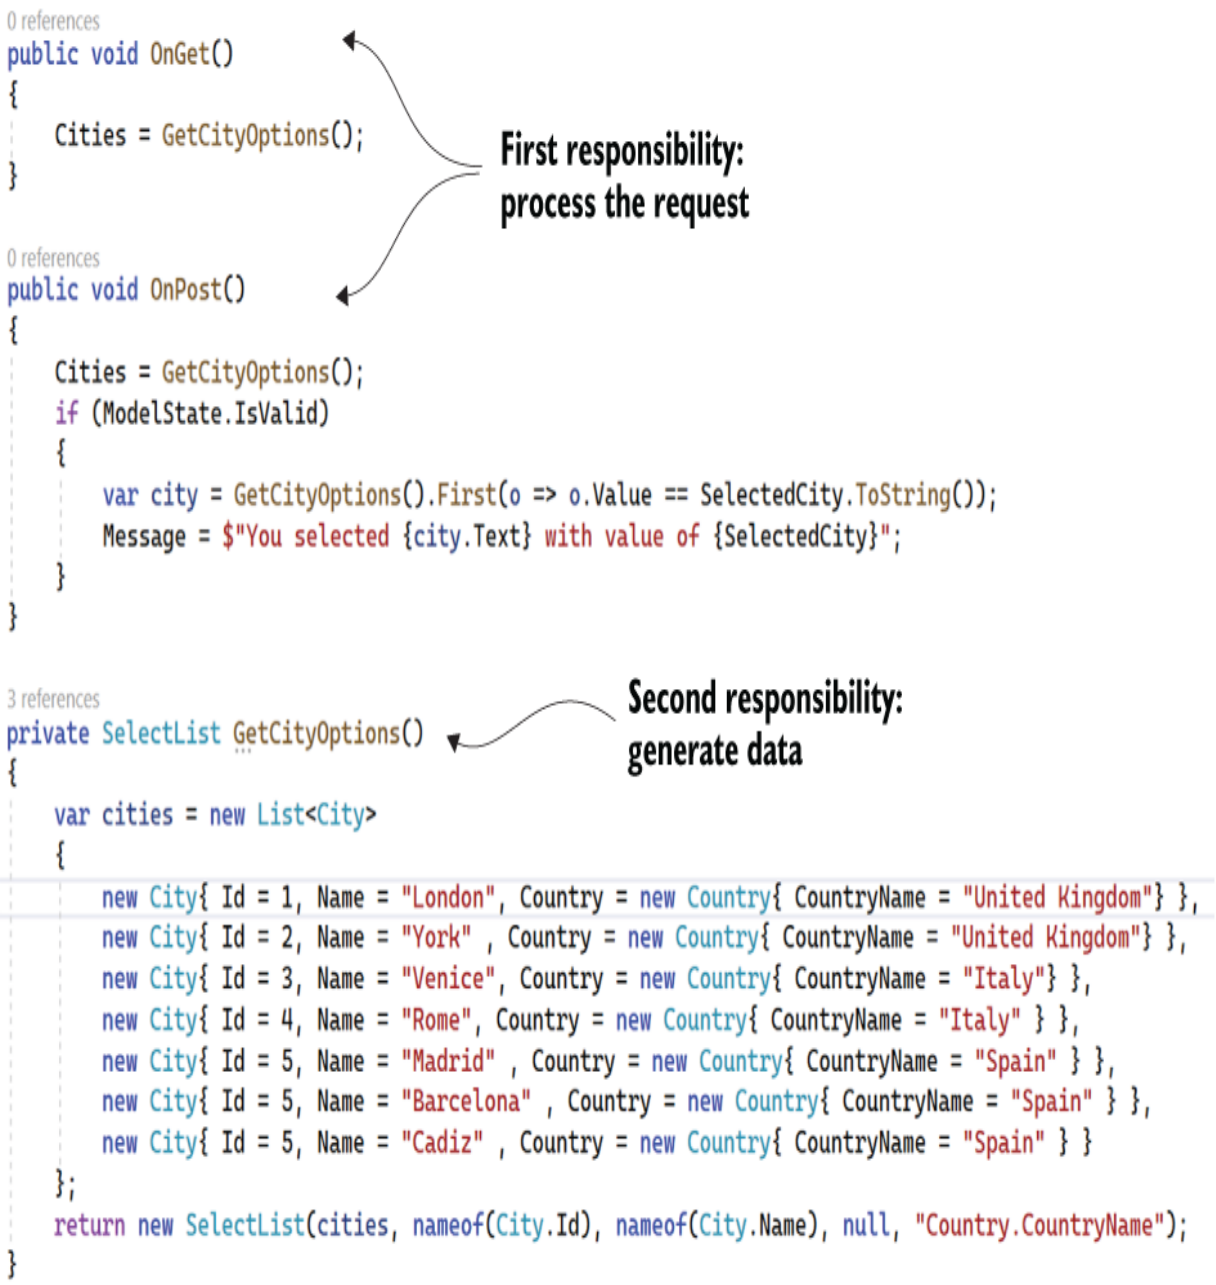

Figure 7.1 The `PageModel` currently has two responsibilities.

In the next chapter, we will look at using databases in Razor Pages applications. You will want to change how the city options are generated by retrieving them from the database. That change has nothing to do with the primary role of a `PageModel` class—processing a request. However, as things are currently designed, the move to a database will require us to delve