At this stage, if you have not configured your email service correctly, you will see a message to that effect with a link in the page that you should click to confirm your account.

Hopefully, you got things right, however, and now have an EML file in your TempMail folder (figure 9.16).

Open the EML file with a suitable application (email client), and click the link (figure 9.17).
