

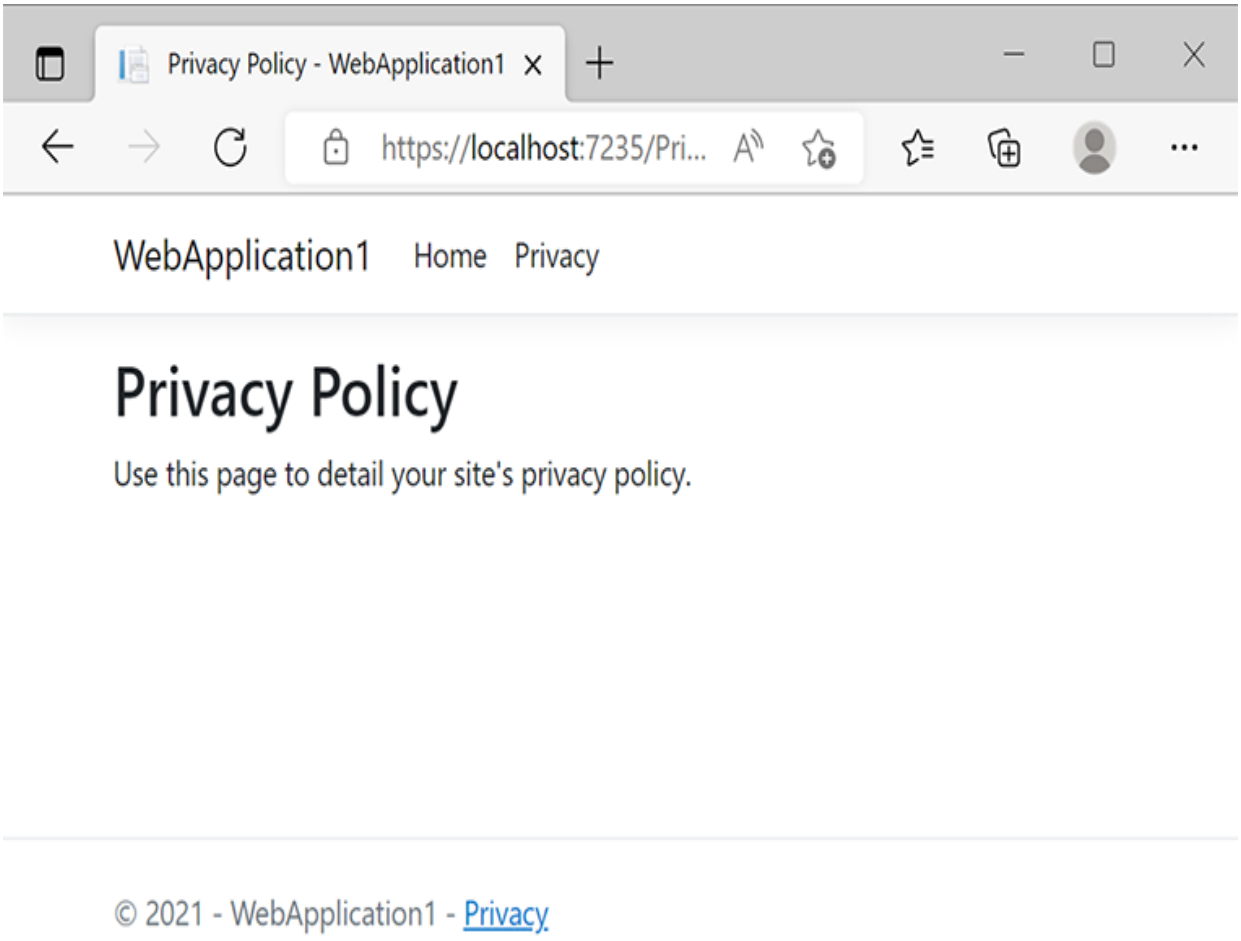

Figure 2.5 The privacy page includes the same header, footer, and styling as the home page.

There is not much else you can do with this application at present. There aren't yet any interesting ways to interact with it, so it is time to add a page to the application.

2.1.4 Adding a new page

In this section, you will add a new page to the application. You will also explore a new feature that was added to .NET 6 called hot reload. This feature results in changes made to your code being reflected in the running application, without you having to relaunch it. This is activated