

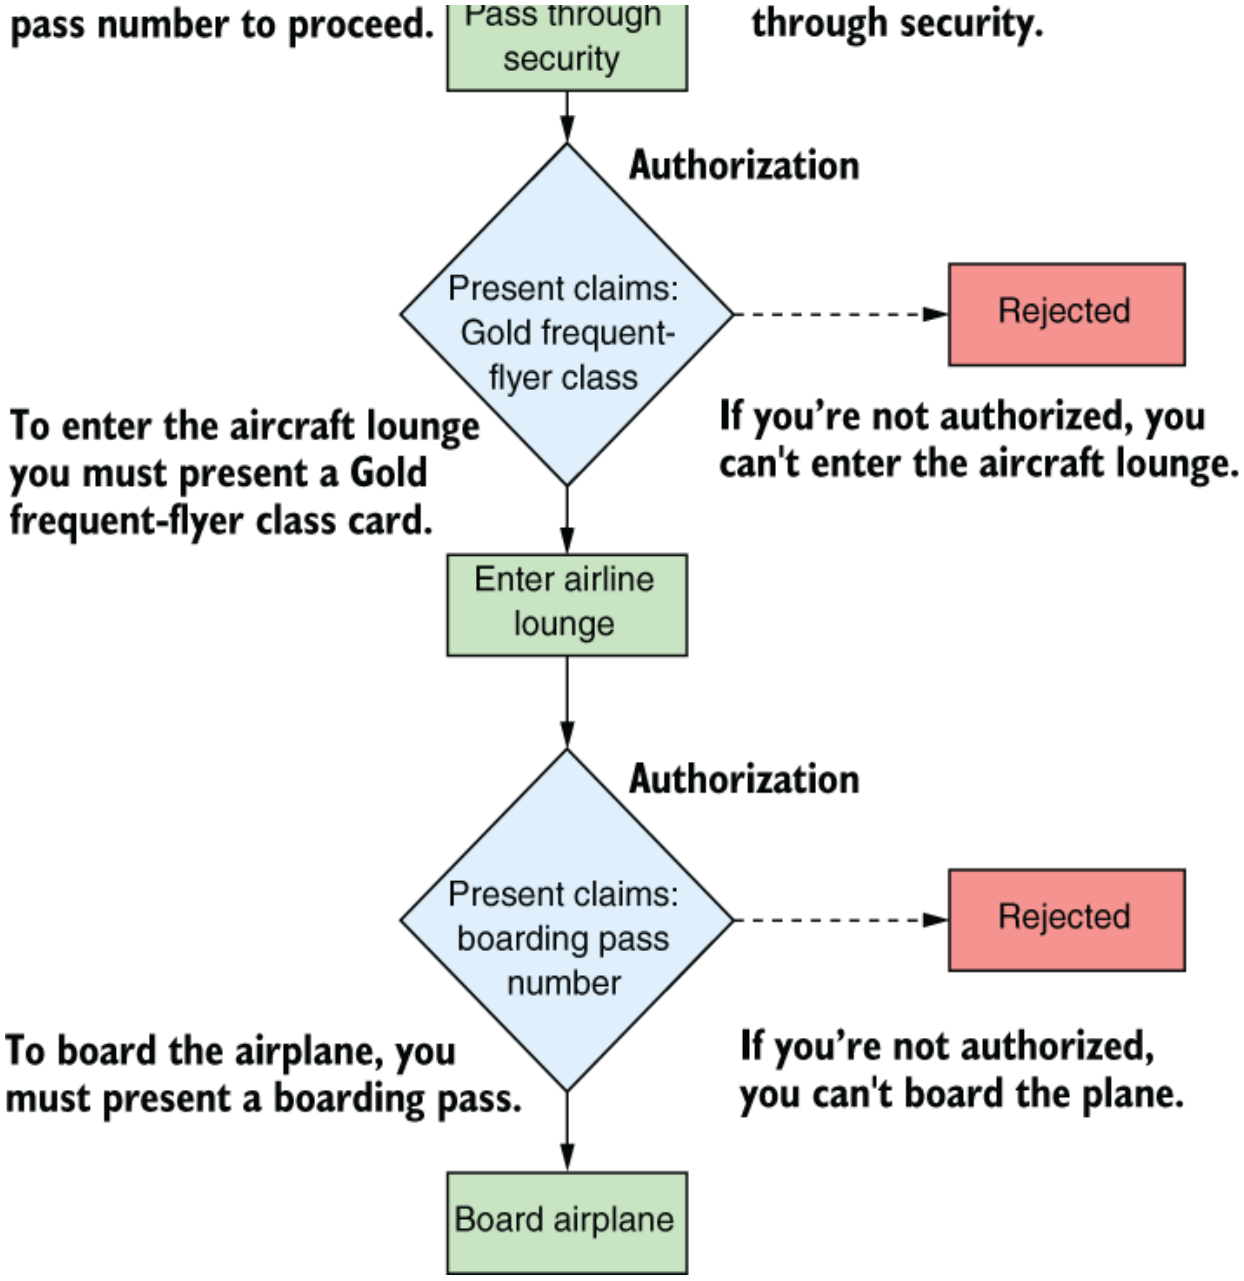

Figure 24.1 When boarding a plane at an airport, you pass through several authorization steps. At each authorization step, you must present a claim in the form of a boarding pass or a frequent-flyer card. If you're not authorized, access is denied.

When you arrive at the airport, the first thing you do is go to the check-in counter. Here, you can purchase a plane ticket, but to do so, you need to