- You can modify the user interface to account for user authorization by adding additional properties to your `PageModel`. If a user isn't authorized to execute an action, you can remove or disable the link to that action method in the UI. You should always authorize on the server, even if you've removed links from the UI.