which shows questions and answers, there's a section showing the current logged-in user, a panel for blog posts and related items, and a section for job suggestions.

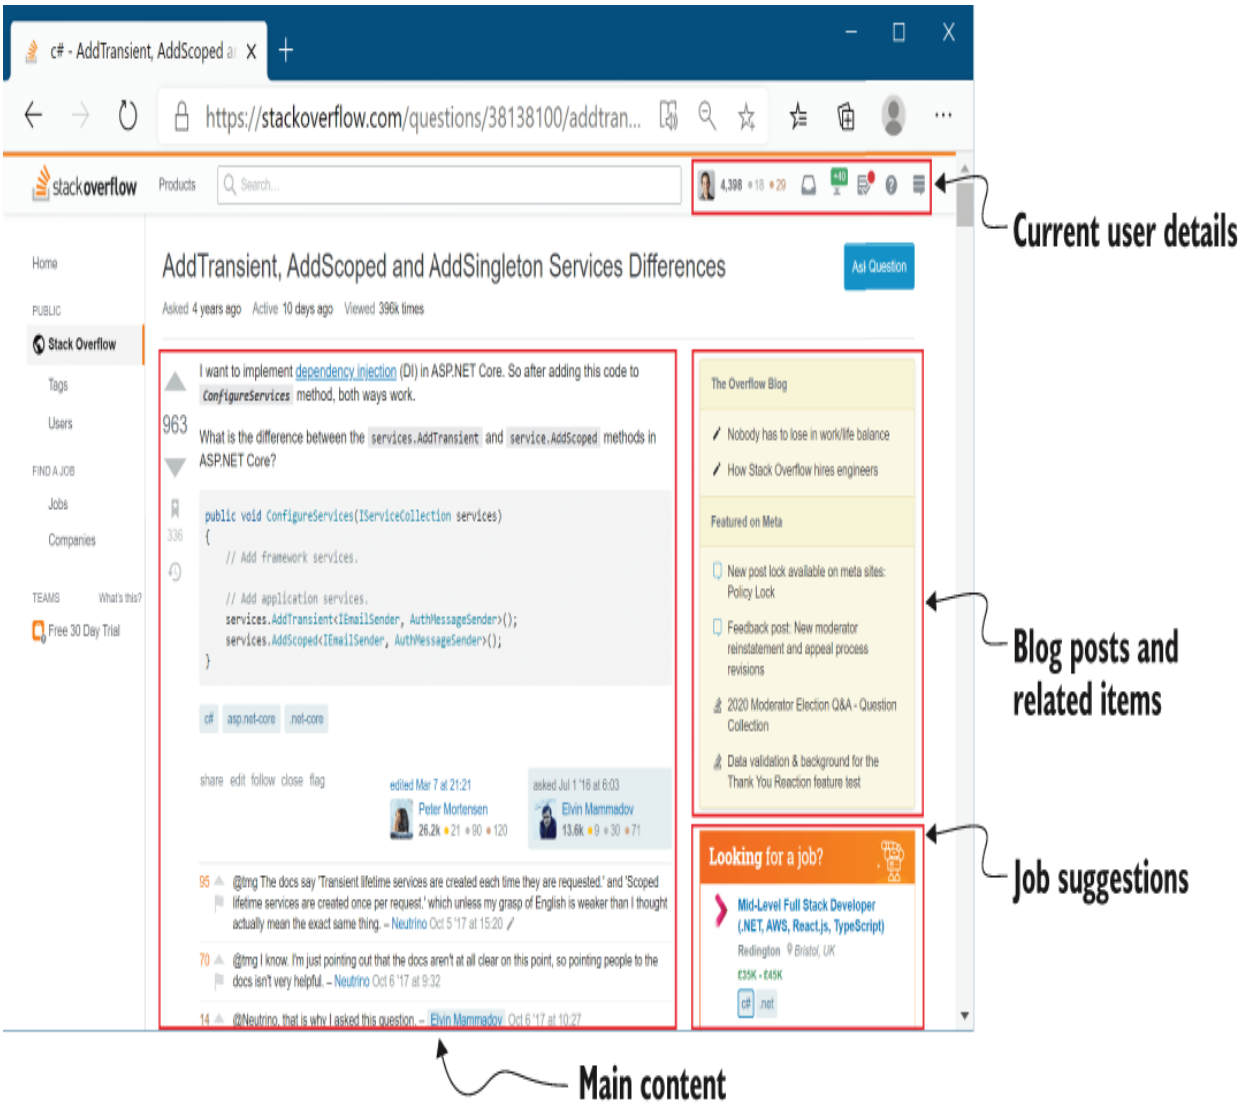

Figure 32.3 The Stack Overflow website has multiple sections that are independent of the main content but contain business logic and complex rendering logic. Each of these sections could be rendered as a view component in ASP.NET Core.