the `HttpClient` to send a message, the `HttpRequestMesssage` is passed through each handler in turn. The API-key handler adds the extra header and passes the request to the next handler in the pipeline. Eventually, the `HttpClientHandler` makes the network request to send the HTTP request. After the response is received, each handler gets a chance to inspect (and potentially modify) the response.

