

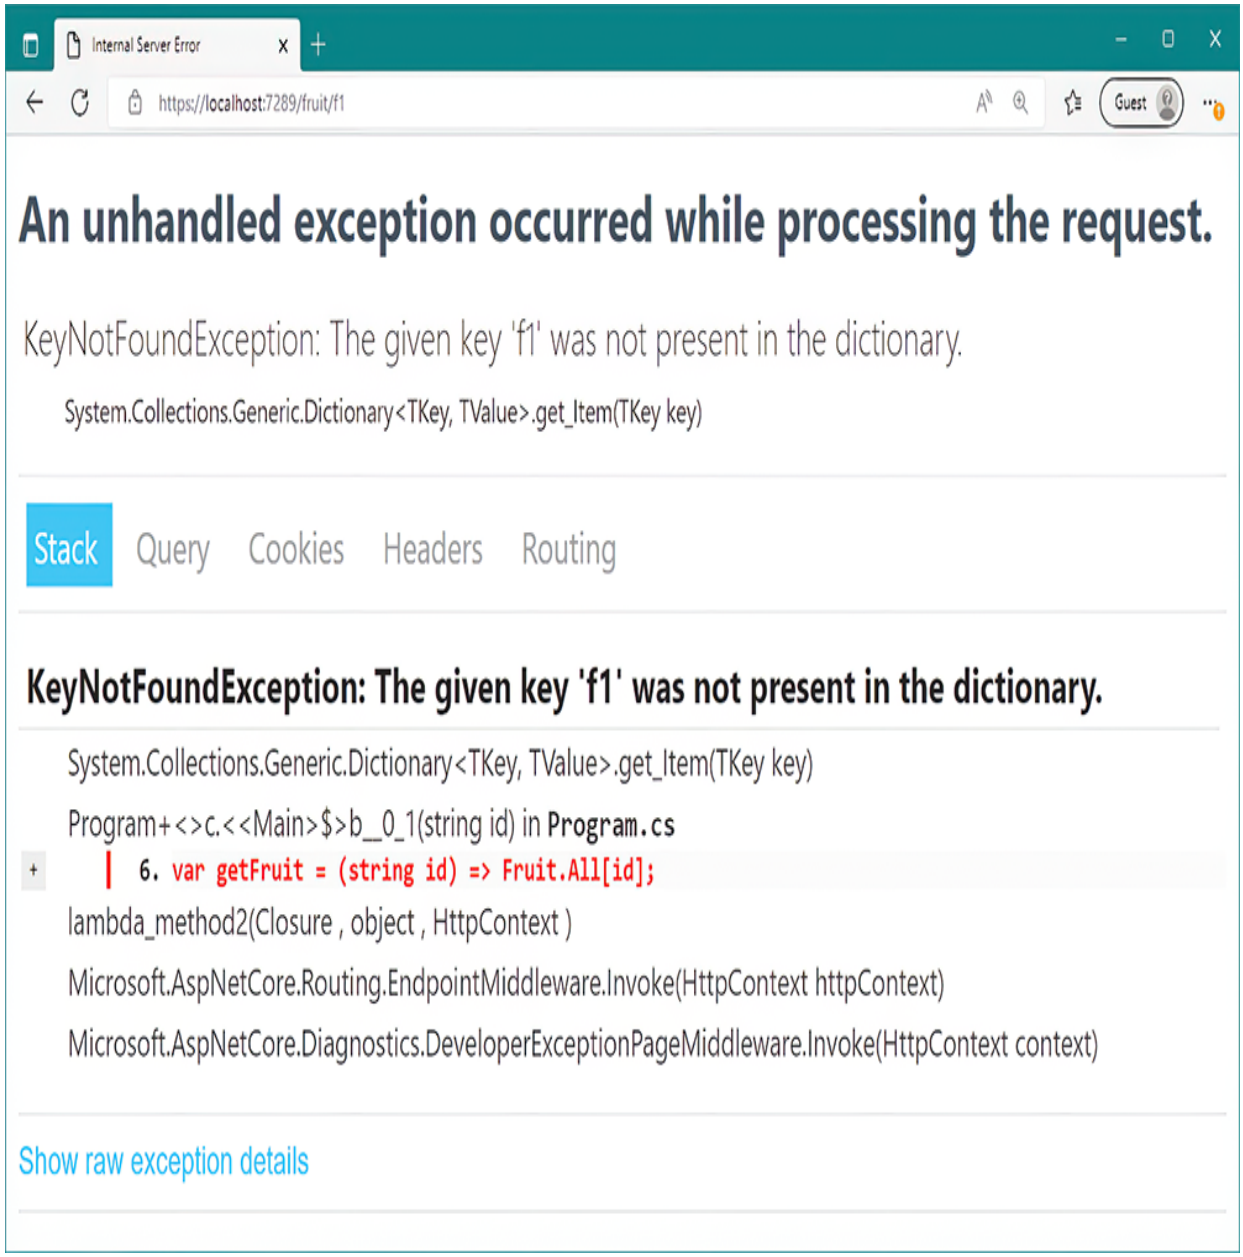

Figure 5.4 If you try to retrieve a fruit by using a nonexistent `id` for the simplistic API in listing 5.2, the endpoint throws an exception. This exception is handled by the `DeveloperExceptionPage-Middleware` but provides a poor experience.

Throwing an exception whenever a user requests an `id` that doesn't exist clearly makes for a poor experience all round. A better approach is to return