- Choose web API controllers when you need content negotiation, when you have complex filtering requirements, when you have experience with web controllers, or when you prefer convention over configuration for your apps.
- Choose minimal API endpoints when performance is critical, when you prefer explicit configuration over automatic conventions, or when you’re starting a new app.