database. But for this example, we’ll just upload them directly.

A.5.1 Employees

We begin by creating the ACME employees, who are the principal members of the organization. These include Alice and Bob, both engineers who report to Carol; Carol herself, who oversees Engineering; and Dan, who works in Legal and has no manager. By defining the reporting structure here, we ensure that policies depending on hierarchical relationships (such as manager access) can be evaluated accurately:
